To Whom It May Concern:

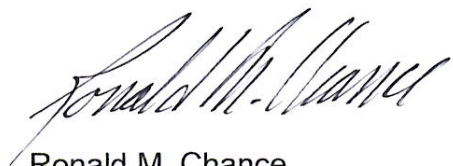

I am pleased to provide this letter of reference on behalf of G. W. Peoples Contracting Co., Inc. (GWP) a railroad construction contractor that my former company URS, now Aecom, contracted with on the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority's (MARTA) Atlanta Streetcar Project.

URS designed and constructed the Atlanta Streetcar, a $69.2 million project that included 2.7 miles of track, 12 stations, an operations/maintenance facility and yard, traction power and overhead catenary system and significant utility relocation. The project is a circulator streetcar system running through downtown Atlanta and its historic civil rights district, and will connect to future transit corridors.

Under a $4.3 million subcontract, GWP furnished materials, equipment and labor to install all embedded and specialty track which included ballasting, clips, fasteners, steel ties, turnouts, storage tracks, switches and specialty hardware. GWP performed exceptional work and displayed a special dedication to getting the job done right and in accordance to the requirements of their subcontract. I was impressed by their commitment to providing a quality product and to a safe working environment.

GWP's management team has a long history of experience in this particular type of work, and their onsite employees were diligent and accommodating to work with. It is without hesitation that I strongly recommended GWP as a rail construction contractor for your future requirements..

Sincerely,
